

Lou finally had surgery two weeks ago. His foot is healing magnificently and he had a weight-bearing cast put on today at his post-op. He is currently in a skilled nursing facility for wound care and may be going back into assisted living soon. We were thrilled that the surgery didn't bring on any MRSA, any bedsores, or any complications. In a couple weeks we hope to make arrangements for him to be admitted to an assisted living facility in Portland, near Joey.
